

In the montains around Cooke City, 1-2 feet of dense snow exists above 9,000 ft. This will likley make up the foundation of the winter snowpack. Fortunately, this base layer has gained strength with recent warm weather and should be a strong foundation for future snows. Photo K. Broderick

Advisory Region

Cooke City

Longitude

-109.95W

Latitude

45.07N

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanhe Forecast for Sat Oct 21, 2017GNFAC Avalanhe Advisory for Mon Oct 23, 2017

Cooke City, 2017-10-17